

Jennifer Wood lives in Boise, Idaho and is an assistant professor of graphic design at Boise State University. She is active in the field of graphic design and sits on the board of the Boise chapter of the AIGA. She has worked in the graphic design industry in New York, Miami and Costa Rica.

Jennifer's installation work combines typography, sculpture and drawing which has thematically referenced ideas surrounding consumerism, corporate structure, and body ownership. She fuses her professional experience, the history of graphic design and contemporary issues in art to create multidisciplinary installations.